Federal Operatives Get News of Big Deposits in European Banks

CHICAGO, Aug. 4.—The machinations of John W. Worthington, "the genius gone wrong," took an international aspect today when the Chicago federal operative discovered that large sums of money were deposited in his name in banks in Paris, Berlin, Warsaw, Poznan and various cities in Italy.

Announcement of the discovery of Worthington's foreign caches, made by Col. John V. Clinton, first assistant United States district attorney, who said he expected the total of the amounts deposited abroad to reach a fabulous sum.

The money is believed to have been the loot from several major robberies engineered by the "thieves trust" of which Worthington was the alleged "brains" and possibly from a hold-up on Wall Street in New York several months ago, when $1,000,000 in stocks of the Sinclair oil company was stolen.

At the same time word came to the federal authorities, Colonel Clinton said, which would prove beyond doubt that Worthington, financed the Toledo mail robbery.

Another of the high lights in the case today was the search for McVie's "hot" money, the skyscraper burglar, indicted as one of Worthington's aides.

He is said to be motoring through the Sierra mountains on his way back to Chicago. His bonds have been set at $10,000. However, exact connection with Worthington was not divulged.

John J. Epps, who was indicted in connection with the Toledo robbery and later freed, and for whom a warrant is out now, surrendered today.

One of Four Car Wreck Victims Has Chance for Recovery; Companion Now Out of Danger

O. C. Fordyce, injured in an auto wreck on North Peoria avenue a half mile north of the city limits Tuesday night, was reported in an improved condition Thursday night by attending physicians. Although his throat was slashed from ear to ear and his face badly bruised he is said to be slowly recovering.

Mary Wright, 207 North Boulder avenue, who was also injured in the wreck, but not so seriously, is recovering rapidly, hospital attendants say. She suffered a broken arm and other bruises.

The auto was driven by Paul Hastings who was almost instantly killed when the car ran under an iron cable stretched across the road which was being paved. Investigations conducted by the county engineer, Dan Patton, showed the obstruction was properly lighted the night of the accident. Miss Betty Utah, who was in the front seat with Hastings, was also killed in the accident.

CARUSO'S DOCTOR PRAISES SURGEON

Physician Who Attended Great Singer Boosts American Medicine

By the Associated Press
ROME, Aug. 4.—Dr. Raffaele Barillanti, reputed to be the greatest surgeon in Italy, who with his brother, Giuseppe, attended Enrico Caruso when he suffered the relapse last week which led to his death, said today regarding Caruso's illness in America:

"It was undoubtedly a pitiful emergency which immediately put the patient in such a grave condition that it must be considered a miracle that the American doctors succeeded in saving his life."

Recounting the last few days of Caruso's illness, the famous surgeon said:

"I, with my brother Giuseppe, visited Caruso professionally on July 28 at Sorrento, and we agreed that the suffering was derived from a sub-renal abscess."

"We decided that Caruso should be taken to Rome and submitted to an X-ray examination. His condition was relatively good. This was emphasized by the fact that he laughed and joked with us, explaining by operative motions how he sang."

"So strong was he then that he stood up before us and made a motion of singing in the act of reaching high notes in the midst of a dramatic acting. Then he added jokingly:

"When I was about to reach a high note during a performance in America, something caught me in the throat. I put my hand to my mouth in an effort to regain my voice when I spat out a mouthful of blood."

"Caruso laughed as he demonstrated this condition to us. His chief thought was that of resuming his career and being able to return to the stage and sing again."

Returning to the subject of Caruso's illness in America, Doctor Barillanti said:

"The American doctors showed the greatest professional skill and technique in the operation they performed. Their work commands the greatest admiration and respect, increasing the deserved fame which American doctors enjoy throughout the world."

As a parting word, the famous Italian surgeon said to the correspondent:

"Whatever you can say in praise of American doctors, say it as coming from me."
